COUNTY SCHOOLS

Many people starve to death with plenty of food all around them and they are privileged to eat as much and as often as they wish. Many school children are suffering from malnutrition and they have had access to too much food in many instances. Plenty of the right kind of food served right and eaten at the right time and in the right way after the food has been well prepared, is the surest insurance against poor health of any one thing to human kind. How is the child going to know what kind of food and how best to prepare that kind of food to insure his or her health? To tell the average mother that she does not know the food value of any common food served to the citizens of this county, would not offend her because she does not know. The average mother does not know how many calories, vitamins, or how much protein that or that food contains or whether it is good for her child or any of either; and it is not her fault, possibly. She never had a chance to be taught this in her day in school. But home economics and domestic science as being taught in our senior schools is the solution of this key to food values. The Register high school for the first time has placed home economics on their school curricula and it is meeting with favor as the girls see the purpose of the course. How could the girls know without some one to teach them? So long as they did not have a teacher, they were not able to know of the great good to be gotten from the department. Since the beginning of the present school year at Register, this work has become basically established and the most satisfactory results are being gotten. Classes totaling in the aggregate seventy-two girls are being taught home economics. Twenty girls are from the grammar grades who have units to be made up in this lower grade department. Two well equipped rooms are devoted to the department of home economics which are well equipped in most of the essential needs. Already there have been supplied four large double cabinets strongly built and are modern, two new Singer sewing machines and one gas stove together with other tables and a good supply of chairs. This department needs cooking utensils and other of the lesser requirements which are being installed by degrees for lack of plenty of cash. Mrs. J. B. Pullen, the teacher, is really a leader and teacher. Her former experience in this department enables her to direct this work most efficiently. Mrs. Pullen teaches science in addition to home economics. Under the leadership of Prof. J. B. Pullen, vocational agriculture has become favorably introduced in the Register school curricula. This work was begun there the first of July of this year and now there are fifty-three boys, forty-nine of them having farm projects. Most of these boys have gotten in on time winter cover crops on the projects they will demonstrate next year. In addition to having enrolled and interested this number of boy students, Prof. Pullen has an evening class of twenty-six men farmers of his district. Believe it or not, much good will come of this work. We know what is the leading occupation of Register school district, and of Bulloch county as for that matter, farming, and anything that will help to efficiency in that industry is to be encouraged and given the most hearty support. The enrollment of the Register school is steadily increasing and the average daily attendance is nearing a satisfactory attainment. A new teacher had to be added to the primary grade because of an enrollment of seventy-four in the first grade alone. Register has some of the best teachers of the county system and all the way through one is impressed with the system and methods in use by the teachers in charge. Miss Akins, teacher of the first grade, is in reality an outstanding teacher. When you have a chance to visit Register, drop in and watch her lead the little folk on in their work in spite of your presence. She can do it. The Register school houses are well kept, but the campus has been so badly washed and gullied that the faculty finds it most difficult to make as attractive as they wish. Much work has been done in an effort to save the premises from utter ruin and much is yet to be done. A modern wire fence being constructed around the school grounds and ditching to prevent water from other lands washing away the balance of the school yard. It will require five hundred dollars to redeem the promise but the work will be done.

Thirty per cent of the 1927-28 appropriation for Bulloch county schools has not yet been paid, and forty per cent of the 1928-29 appropriations is yet to be paid to us and NONE of the 1929-30 appropriations have been paid. The county is in a bad way.

led along and schemed and in some way we have been able to go along. We have money enough on paper to operate our school fairly well; but paper promises do not pay teachers and other expenses. Our local banks have been very considerate of our needs and have helped us materially to tide this emergency. The Sea Island bank has loaned us the limit allowed to a banking institution with their capital, and they have been waiting patiently on the state to enable us to repay them. When time came for our payment of October payroll, the First National Bank was considerate enough to loan us the money with which to complete the October payment. We hope to be able to make one more payment before the Christmas holidays.

The regional meeting of the G. E. A., held at Teachers College Monday of this week, was a real successful meeting of the educators of this section of our state. Approximately a thousand teachers were in attendance. Our teachers appreciate the entertainment furnished by the Teachers College, especially the barbecue dinner. Guy H. Wells knows the road to the hearts of the teachers and he never misses an opportunity to show his appreciation and at the same time win the esteem of the teachers of this section of Georgia.

Our Red Cross nurse is on the job. She has visited every school in the county and will be constantly in touch with the schools in the interest of the health of the children. We are glad to have her on the job.

The Portal school district is the big problem to handle satisfactorily. The enrollment is getting too large for the present equipment. There were more room, we would now add another district, which would make this school an ahead of any other school in numbers we have in our county system. We expect Portal to have the most children of any school in the county during the present term. Portal's handicap is that of half and half free from bond obligations. A movement to change the Portal school into all free, a new school house is needed and some remodeling of the old is necessary. Portal will meet her needs and will have the good school to which they are entitled.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY

"The Right Way"

Central of Georgia Expresses Appreciation for Patronage of its Friends

A railroad has only one important source of revenue, the money earned for transporting freight and passengers. Without the patronage of the shipping and traveling public no railroad could continue to operate, since there would be no money to meet payrolls, to pay taxes or to purchase necessary supplies and equipment. Every passenger, no matter how short his journey, and every shipper, no matter how small, contributes to a railroad's ability to continue operation.

Because of the public nature of their service, the railroads must operate their trains as advertised—regardless of patronage. For example the Central of Georgia's trains from Macon to Atlanta or from Birmingham to Jacksonville must leave as scheduled, even though no passenger presents himself for transportation. Every passenger counts for the railroad, and this is also true of every shipment.

The Central of Georgia is genuinely appreciative of the patronage it has enjoyed from its friends of the shipping and traveling public. Its earnings have enabled it to bring its service to a high standard of efficiency, and practically all money paid this company has been put back into circulation in the territory from which it came.

In thanking its friends for their patronage, the management of the Central of Georgia wishes to stress its appreciation for every passenger and shipment using this railroad—no matter how small the shipment or how short the passenger's journey over our line. In return for such patronage the railroad pledges the best possible service for every passenger or shipment it is allowed to handle.

Constructive criticism and suggestions invited.

A. E. CLIFT,
President, Central of Georgia Railway Company.

least bit of food seemed to fill my stomach with gas. I'd get nauseated and feel so faint and dizzy I could scarcely walk. My nerves went all to pieces, and I couldn't sleep well and nothing I took seemed to bring relief. "I'm in better health now since taking Sargon, than I've been in five years!" I eat anything I like without the slightest trouble with my stomach or diarrhea, and my nerves are wonderfully relaxed. I sleep soundly all night and feel so much stronger that I expect to soon take up my work as a trained nurse again. It's a pleasure to give this splendid medicine my whole-hearted endorsement."—Mrs. A. M. Young, 1797 Boulevard Drive, S. E., Atlanta.

FORMAL REPORT OF BULLOCH GRAND JURY

erty in general has been maintained until today it shows up as a well kept institution, and when we have gone through the buildings and see the great improvements that have been made in the last few years we think we can easily see where this money has been well spent.

We consider this a great institution and well worthy of our support, and are glad that we had an opportunity to visit the college and see for ourselves what a great school we have right here in our midst.

We found a splendid herd of dairy cattle and a fine lot of hogs and were told that the audit of the state treasurer showed that the farm made some clear money during the last year. Altogether we feel that we can heartily recommend this college to all of our people, feeling that it is in the right place and is doing a most splendid work, and deserves the hearty support of all our people.

We recommend that a copy of this report be published in the Bulloch Times and that said paper be paid for publishing.

We desire to thank the solicitor-general, W. G. Neville, for his assistance to us in investigating certain matters brought before us.

We desire to express our appreciation and thanks to his honor Judge H. B. Strange for his charge delivered to our body, and we desire to assure the court that we have sought to perform our duties.

JOHN B. EVERETT, Foreman.
S. EDWIN GROOVER, Clerk.

The foregoing presentations received, read and ordered recorded on the minutes of this court, and also published as recommended. In open court this November 5, 1929.

MEETING COMPETITION
In our advertising columns for the past two or three weeks there has been an advertisement which ought to be of interest to the people of the community about Statesboro. It is the joint advertisement of a group of grocers announcing certain special bargains for the week end.

Besides the interest in the prices offered, the advertisement carried with it evidence that the independent retailers of the community are standing their ground in the business world in an intelligent way. They have arrived at a definite decision that the way to meet competition is with prices and quality.

That person who lays down and cries in the face of competition gets the sympathy only from himself. The man who stands his ground and goes ahead in face of competition, commands the respect and confidence of the world.

It has too long been the custom of the smaller merchants and their defenders to cry out against the larger grocery stores. This crying out may have been some little relief to the minds of those who cried, but it has at the same time been an advertisement of the bigger concerns in that it has acknowledged the ability to outdo the smaller merchants. There are a few patriotic persons who are willing to stand by the little man and pay him higher prices, but the masses are eager to go where they believe they are getting better bargains. If it is just human nature to do that way, crying against the chain store has not brought the little merchant any tangible results. In the meantime the chain store has gone merrily on. It has not always sold merchandise cheaper than the little merchant, but it has had a way of making the public feel that it was serving best.

And service is what the people are hunting—not weeping. When the little merchants combined in their purchases, they placed themselves in position to buy at better advantages, and consequently to sell to better advantage. Having thus prepared to meet competition, the next thing to tell the world about it. It may be that most of these merchants had previously been offering bargains just as attractive as those they are now advertising, but the people have been in the dark about it for the reason that the little merchant was not publishing that fact to the world.

We congratulate our little merchants upon the fact that they have determined to meet competition and meet it in a way that the public can appreciate and understand.

KETTLE AND POT
That is an old fable about the kettle and pot falling out when one of them charged the other with being of color. But that sort of thing has been going on from time to time since Adam was a little child, and will probably continue as long as kettles and pots are black.

At the recent annual conference in Macon Rev. Bascom Anthony sent a hot shot into the rear anatomy of Bishop Cannon, the Methodist politician-gambler. Mr. Anthony didn't call his name, but he pictured him so accurately that there could be no mistaking whom he meant. And then there was an effort to hush the matter and the minister tactfully shut off with his scater gun.

Rev. Mr. Anthony criticized the bishop for his stock market speculations, and declared that he was a plain, old-fashioned gambler. The inference was that he had injured his church and largely lost his influence for good through his conduct. Mr. Anthony was correct. But he failed to mention another great blot upon the conduct of the bishop which had done equally as much to injure his usefulness. He neglected to refer to the bishop's political activities which have been even more conspicuous and equally as offensive. And there was a reason that Mr. Anthony didn't go into that—he had himself done the same as bishop Cannon.

It may be that Rev. Mr. Anthony does not realize that he was far out of his realm of religious duty when

"Georgia Red Apple" Grows in Popularity

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11.—Eve fell for an apple, so did Adam, and he has been whining ever since; but that had nothing to do with National Apple Week except Eve still hands him a lot of apple sauce.

Observance of Apple Week has closed, but the slogan, "Eat Georgia Apples—Gobble 'Em," goes on, for the luscious fruit from the orchards of Habersham, Haralson and Polk counties, the noted "Georgia Red Apple," a replica of which stands permanently in granite near the railroad station in Cornelia, is to be found at every fruit stand and apple store in the state.

J. C. Porter, secretary-treasurer of the Consolidated Apple Growers' Exchange and resident manager at Cornelia, which exchange handles the North Georgia crop, says the home-grown fruit was more widely distributed than in any previous year. Before in the history of the organization. Many carloads were shipped to northern markets in addition to shipments all over the Southeast.

A cool twenty million dollars is said to be invested in the apple orchards of North Georgia and the industry now is something to talk about, according to horticulturists. The apple exhibit at the recent Southeastern Fair in Atlanta was said to be one of the wonder sights of the big show. It appears that the rose-colored apple, the new green apple, the Freedom apple, and apples of all the fancy names, have found a place to grow in Georgia.

No section of the country, it is claimed, grows more delicious apples than this state, and Atlanta gets the bulk of them—though they are shipped everywhere, even to Paris and Skam, take C. R. Porter's word for that, and he's "Georgia's Apple King," with 5,000 acres of apple land in Haralson and Polk counties. "The Porter Apple," which comes from Esosa, Ga., is much sought in the Atlanta markets.

Pine Tree Products Featured At Fair

Atlanta, Nov. 11.—The Georgia Forest Service will feature in its exhibit at the Georgia Forest Fair, Valdosta, November 21, 22 and 23, more than one hundred products of the long leaf and slash pine under the general head of "Uses of Pine Wood," "Turpentine," "Rosin," "Needles," and "Cones."

Several federal and commercial exhibitors will also exhibit pine products, and it is believed by those present at the Georgia Forest Service that the fair will present the most complete and elaborate exhibition of the varied and valuable uses of Southern pines ever displayed.

Wide-spread interest in the forest fair is reported with prospects of a large attendance from not only all parts of Georgia but from neighboring states. Exhibits are reported to have been obtained from the federal government and from various commercial interests, some coming as far away as the Pacific coast.

Plans have been made to have the quarterly meeting of the Georgia Board of Forestry at Valdosta during the fair, also the annual meeting of the Southeastern sections of the Society of American Foresters.

COUNTY AGENT

For the past week or two I have been awamped with requests to sell corn and sweet potatoes. I have repeatedly advised farmers to hold their corn off the market for a month or more. I know that in some cases it is absolutely necessary for farmers to sell their corn in order to raise funds to pay debts, or to buy the necessities of life, but in some cases it is not necessary to sell right now. The corn market is glutted right now, and it is almost impossible to sell them at anything like a fair price. I have been trying to sell sweet potatoes for the past few days, and have succeeded 75 cents delivered in Macon, net price of 75 cents. Yesterday I was offered 75 cents delivered in Macon, which would net us about 60 cents. I am going to keep on trying to sell corn, but I will not sell for less than 10 cents per bushel unless farmers insist on selling anyway. The sweet potato market is always down at this time of year, and it is almost impossible to sell them in our lots. I am satisfied that potatoes will advance in price, and that there will be a good demand for them in January. I will also be a good demand for corn after the first of the year.

I have an inquiry from one to ten peanut-fed hams, weighing not less than 16 pounds. If anybody who has these hams for sale will let me know the price, I will be glad to buy them. I will submit same to the party wanting the hams. Do this immediately.

E. P. JOSEY, County Agent.

Chiropractic What Is It?

BY DR. HARRY VEDDER, President of Lincoln Chiropractic College, Indianapolis, Ind.
It is not our purpose in this short treatise to discuss any particular disease. Rather, this explanation is intended to lay down in simple, understandable language the fundamental premise upon which Chiropractic is based and to show clearly that this premise is in conformity with the known facts of life which are familiar to everyone.

It should be understood in the beginning that Chiropractic is a new profession only in the sense that it is a new use of principles which have always existed and which, since the beginning of time, have been evidenced in all expressions of life.

Requirements of Life
Life exists in many forms and each living thing must be supplied with certain necessities in order that it may exist. Without these necessities the living thing undergoes destructive change and finally death. In order for the tree to live and thrive it must receive from the earth in which it rests certain nourishing elements. These are absorbed, drawn up into growing sapling and changed into wood and bark and sap and leaves. Air is necessary and so is light if this particular form of life is to exist.

Man's Needs
It is equally true that man requires certain material things and must be provided with certain conditions in order that his life may be expressed. He requires oxygen, nutrition, water, a reasonable degree of warmth and light. In addition to these there are certain other and intangible factors which, when present, lead to the full expression of life.

Man Is Dual
After all, a living man is a combination of material and immaterial. Immediately following death the material still remains but that elusive something which touches the bone and blood and muscle with the magic wand of expression is withdrawn. This lifeless form which lies in repose on its final couch is but the house, we shall through which life was wont to be expressed. Chemists say that the chemical element which comprise the physical body are worth, as chemicals, approximately 87 cents. It is well then for us to pause and consider for a moment what his immaterial life is which activates our living forms.

Intelligence
There is unlimited evidence which proves that this immaterial force is an intelligent power. It is with us at birth. It is, therefore, inborn and the Chiropractor designates it as the Innate (Inborn) Intelligence. This Innate Intelligence may be considered as "the man within." This "man within" does innumerable things which we, with our poor abilities derived through education, could never dream of doing. It is this power which, in this Innate Intelligence, which stays on the job every second of every hour throughout our lives. Waking or sleeping, the Innate Intelligence is alive and active.

It is this expression of life which causes the heart to beat 75 times per minute throughout our entire lives. It is this intelligence which causes the foods to be digested; which causes them to be absorbed and transported by the circulations to all the parts of the body where their life-giving energy is needed. It is this intangible thing which heals the wound, which moves every physical function with every other function. Far beyond all this, it is this expression of life which activates our brains and leads to thought and vision and dreams—that lifts us out of our little sphere and sets us wandering in distant lands. It kindles love and touches, as a whisper, the heart of all human beings. It is as unreal as a phantom and yet it is the only real thing in all the universe.

Statesboro Young Man Accorded School Honors

The past week has been a most interesting one in the life of P. L. "Becky" Smith, a Statesboro boy, who is now attending school at Emory University in Atlanta.

Within the past few days, Becky has been initiated into two honorary student organizations on the Emory campus, thereby serving notice to the undergraduate world in general that he is one of the outstanding leaders in his class.

One of these organizations is the Omicron, to which the six leading fraternity men in the junior class at Emory are elected each year. Three of these men are selected in the fall and three in mid-year. The Statesboro boy is one of the first three.

The other recent honor of Smith's is election to Seaboard and Blade, an honorary organization composed of men who are taking advanced military courses at the university. Seaboard and Blade is famed for its strenuous initiation, which is a severe physical strain on the individual undergoing it.

In addition to these honors, young Smith is manager of the Emory Wheel, student newspaper, a member of the globe-trotting Epsilon club, a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalism fraternity, and a member of Alpha Kappa Psi commercial fraternity.

Becky's father is D. C. Smith of this city.

The guests were invited for bridge in the home of Mrs. Oliff on Oliff street. Eleven tables of players were invited to the morning party and ten tables of guests for the afternoon. Miss Juanita Everett, of Savannah, was at the morning party and was presented with two lovely party handkerchiefs. Mrs. Boone Morris made high score and Mrs. Dew Groover low at the morning party. In the afternoon Mrs. Forman Bush made high and Mrs. Leffer DeLoach low. Pot holders were given for low scores and handkerchiefs for high scores. The party was a most successful one and was well attended.

Chevrolet Establishes New October Record

Detroit, Nov. 11.—All October production records in the history of the Chevrolet Motor Company were broken last month with an output of 85,915 cars and trucks, it was announced at the central offices here today.

Compared with the output of 65,052 units for October of last year, the 1929 October manufacturing volume shows a gain of more than 20,000 units. It indicates an increase of more than 900 cars and trucks a day over the showing for the corresponding month of a year ago.

Chevrolet's record October performance brings output up to 1,275,478 units as of November first. This is more cars than Chevrolet has ever built in an entire year and is nearly five times the number of any other six-cylinder car built in an entire year.

Due to the continued high demand, Chevrolet plants are working on the biggest November schedule on record. An indication of the volume of business that Chevrolet is doing nationally is seen in the report for the last ten days of October which shows a gain of 40 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. The figures for the period are 36,640 for the last ten days of this October as compared with the 24,639 for the corresponding period of 1928.

Presbyterian Church

Our church services on last Sunday evening were called off to unite in the great union gathering at the Methodist church. Hence the greater reason for all our people to remember their engagements on next Sunday when we have both morning and evening services. Our school, which convenes at 10:15 each Sunday, is growing in interest and efficiency with capable officers and teachers.

The morning text next Sunday at 11:15 will be "When thou art converted strengthen thy brethren," and at the evening hour, 7:30, the words "And Peter," will suggest the evening meditation.

At a recent meeting of the session plans were initiated looking toward the engagement of Rev. Ralph Gilliam for a special series of evangelistic services to be held at a convenient time in the spring. Dr. Gilliam is no stranger in Statesboro, or for that matter in Georgia, and our community will gladly welcome this announcement. "Come thou with us."

PURE BRED STOCK ON GEORGIA FARMS

FARMERS ARE OFFERED USE OF HIGH GRADE Sires BY CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Several communities on the Central of Georgia Railway have the opportunity to secure pure bred dairy bulls, on loan; the railway company announcing that it would place these animals for the purpose of encouraging the dairy industry in Georgia and Alabama.

President A. E. Clift has authorized the purchase of such bulls, and the company's agricultural agents will soon begin the selection of points where they shall be loaned. The localities most likely to be favored in this manner are those where it is possible to organize a Co-operative Bull Association in accordance with the plans developed for the operation of such associations by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the extension forces of the agricultural colleges of Alabama and Georgia.

The requirements necessary to justify the placing of a loan bull will be worked out by the dairy specialists at Athens and Auburn and will include, of course, enough commercially producing cows of proper class and quality owned by a group of dairymen who will most likely receive the greatest benefit from the use of a better bull than is now available.

For obvious reasons, one requirement will be that a bull can only be placed in a community which has the services of a county agent.

The Central of Georgia Railway management has long been interested in the building up of the live stock industry of the South to more nearly the already well developed crop growing industry, and gives a really balanced agriculture.

Dr. Clarence Poe, of the Progressive Farmer, very aptly calls Southern agriculture a "one arm system of farming." He quotes interesting figures to prove that the live stock animal which has figuratively been carried in a sling, can, if properly exercised and used, earn more money than the other arm.

Ever since 1912 when, to encourage the Boy's Club work, the Central of Georgia began to give pure bred boars and bulls as prizes in club contests, a large share of the efforts of the railroad's agricultural department has been devoted to encouraging the raising of better live stock.

Since 1920 their efforts to persuade farmers in Central of Georgia territory to establish permanent pastures has met with amazing success, and each February and March sees a steady increase in the acreage sown to carpet grass, Dallis grass and vernal which is recommended to make on the lowlands of this region permanent pastures of a greater carrying capacity than is found in other parts of the United States.

With more good grass available, the Southeast needs more good live stock to graze it. There is no domestic animal that can make more profitable use of good grass than a dairy cow. Although the farmers who accepted the idea of establishing these permanent pastures are grazing them with every kind of live stock, the man who uses the dairy cow to turn his grass into milk is the one who gets the largest return.

Profits earned by dairy cows depend upon their ability to make milk. While this ability is increased by good pastures and proper feeding, the surest and cheapest way to increase milk production comes from increasing the milk giving capacity of the calves which must take the place of the present dairy cows, by making sure the sires of these calves come from that class of dairy cattle in which the milk producing ability has been highly developed.

Believing the use of better sires is the one thing which will advance the dairy industry in the territory served by the railroad, the Central of Georgia has decided to place in its territory some better bulls to prove the value of such a practice.

DeLoaches Visit Home
After Long Absence

Homer DeLoach, of Tampa, Fla., and Virgil DeLoach, of Detroit, Mich., visited their old home in the Bay district during the past two weeks. It was a remarkable occasion because of the fact that the brothers had not been to their old home in more than a third of a century and had not themselves met in more than twenty years.

Homer and Virgil DeLoach are sons of the late W. H. DeLoach, and were reared in Bulloch county near Daisy. In company with their brother, Lonnie, they went to Atlanta something like forty years ago and were for many years engaged in the mill business. The elder brother, Lonnie, died many years ago. Homer went to Tampa fifteen years ago and operated a water system in Seminole Heights there until he sold out to the city for a sum aggregating a hundred thousand dollars. Since then he has been enjoying his leisure. Virgil went to Detroit and engaged in business there. Recently their thoughts turned toward the old home and the old swimming hole and their boyhood days. Having thought of the matter, a visit there followed, so two weeks ago the brothers, each with a grown daughter as an escort, came to visit the old playgrounds. For a full week they lived again their boyhood lives among the old haunts. It was a great occasion for the two brothers.

Strangely enough during their stay at the old home the brothers were called upon to attend the funeral of two of their aunts whom they had not seen since their going away more than a third of a century ago. Mrs. Allen Mikell, aged 91 years, a sister of their father, died at her home near Daisy, and a few days later their mother's sister, Mrs. C. Harper, died at her home in Savannah, aged 80 years. The brothers attended both funerals within a week.

Another incident marred the visit. Returning to their home in Tampa, Homer DeLoach and his daughter were in an automobile wreck near Waycross in which the young lady was badly injured and the car was crushed into splinters. Barring the unpleasant features, their visit was a most enjoyable one for them and for their old friends.

Circus Coming To Statesboro Soon

Some forty years ago the father of Honest Bill traveled the country with a dilapidated wagon and one horse, giving magic shows in school houses and where he could. His son, Willie, in those days used to delight to be with his father and picture his own future when he would be manager, but little dreamed that the day would come that he would reach the height of his childish ambition. Well, time went on and the father became too old to continue so he gave the outfit to his son, who added to it and played the crochards, always producing what he advertised, so that he became known throughout the section traveled as Honest Bill and Moon Bros. Trained Wild Animals Shows. And out of the small acre the large oak has grown for today Honest Bill owns and manages the largest Overland show in America, equipped with special motorized cars, employing one hundred and fifty people, and the finest collection of trained wild and domestic animals at a cost of $75,000, besides 500 educated horses and ponies, built upon a reputation he has today that it pays to be honest and do what you say you will, if you wish to have the confidence of the public. Will exhibit at Teachers College Football Field, Statesboro, Friday, November 22nd. Two performances daily at 2 and 8 p. m. Don't fail to see the big free street parade at noon and free outside exhibitions on show ground at one and seven p. m.

Those accustomed to shading their eyes at night while trying to see the preacher will be happy to know that the new high ceiling units were installed this week and abundance of soft light now floods the auditorium, but without glare. Come and see.

Next Sunday's program embraces the morning school at 10:15 and the Barnes Cafe old stand on West Main street. At 11:15 the text will be "Grow in Grace." Your place cannot be filled by some one else. No evening service.

VALDOSTA MAN DIES AFTER
BRIDGE CRASH PINNED HIM TO SEAT.

Valdosta, Ga., Nov. 17.—Details have been received here of one of the most horrible accidents ever recorded in this section. J. Roe Dasher, residing near this city, received injuries from which he died in a Gainesville, Fla., hospital yesterday.

The accident occurred Thursday night about five miles from Gainesville, Fla., when Mr. Dasher and his brother, J. O. Dasher, also of Valdosta, were traveling the highway. As they approached a wooden bridge across a stream one of the wheels of the automobile came off and the driver lost control of the car. The automobile smashed head first on the rails of the bridge and a piece of the top railing went through the dashboard and penetrated Mr. Dasher's body. The wood entered
